What Does the Kolbe A Assessment Measure?

The Kolbe A Index assesses four primary action modes:

1. Fact Finder: This mode reflects how individuals gather and analyze information. Fact Finders tend to seek details and specifics before making decisions.
2. Follow Thru: This mode indicates how individuals organize and design systems. Those who score high in Follow Thru are likely to create structured plans and stick to them.
3. Quick Start: This mode represents how individuals deal with risk and uncertainty. Quick Starts are often innovative, spontaneous, and comfortable with change.
4. Implementor: This mode measures how individuals handle space and tangible realities. Implementors are hands-on and prefer to work with physical objects or environments.
