La Paz Travel Guide

La Paz, the highest capital city in the world, is nestled in a deep valley surrounded by the majestic Andes Mountains. This vibrant city in Bolivia is a fascinating blend of rich indigenous culture, contemporary life, and stunning landscapes. This travel guide aims to provide you with essential information, tips, and insights for an unforgettable journey to La Paz.

Getting to La Paz

Reaching La Paz is both an adventure and a spectacle. The city is served by El Alto International Airport (LPB), located at an altitude of 4,061 meters (13,325 feet) above sea level. The airport has connections to several major cities in South America, including:

- Buenos Aires
- Lima
- Santiago
- São Paulo

Once you arrive, taxis and shuttle services are readily available to transport you to the city center. Travelers should be cautious about altitude sickness due to the high elevation.

Best Time to Visit

The best time to visit La Paz is during the dry season, which runs from May to October. During these months, the weather is mild, and the skies are mostly clear. However, keep in mind that nights can get quite cold. The rainy season from November to March sees heavy rainfall and occasional flooding, making travel more challenging.

Accommodations

La Paz offers a wide range of accommodations, from budget hostels to luxurious hotels. Here are a few options to consider:

Budget Accommodations

- Wild Rover Hostel: Popular among backpackers, this hostel features a vibrant atmosphere and various social activities.
- Hostal Naira: Located near the Witches' Market, it offers clean rooms at affordable prices.

Mid-Range Accommodations

- Hotel Rosario: A charming hotel that combines traditional Andean architecture with modern amenities.
- Hotel Europa: Offers comfortable rooms and is situated close to the city's main attractions.

Luxury Accommodations

- Casa Grande Hotel: Known for its exceptional service and luxurious amenities, this hotel provides stunning views of the city.
- Radisson Hotel La Paz: A contemporary hotel featuring spacious rooms and a rooftop restaurant.
