Identifying Minifigures by Feel

Being able to identify LEGO minifigures by feel is a skill that can be developed with practice. Here are some tips to help you differentiate between the various figures in Series 24:

Key Features to Feel For

When you're in a store or at an event, you can use the following key features to identify the minifigures:

1. Accessories: Many figures come with specific accessories that can be easily identified by touch. For example:

- A spear or sword can indicate a knight or warrior.
- A hat or headgear can signal a character like a chef or a wizard.
- A large item like a musical instrument can suggest a performer.

2. Body Shape: The body shape can also be a giveaway. Some minifigures have unique builds or costumes that can be felt:

- Animal suits (e.g., a dinosaur or a bear) have distinct forms.
- Specialized bodies like the robot or superhero minifigures may have different textures.

3. Headgear and Hair: The type of headgear or hair can be a strong indicator:

- Hats can feel bulky or flat, helping to differentiate figures.
- Hairpieces may have unique styles, such as long hair or specific haircuts.

4. Hands and Feet: The details of the hands and feet can also provide clues:

- Some figures come with special hands (e.g., claws or gloves).
- Unique footwear can indicate a character's profession or theme.
