Components of the Male Enlisted Army Class B Uniform

The male enlisted Army Class B uniform is a versatile and standardized attire worn for various non-combat duties, including office work and formal functions. This uniform primarily consists of the Army green service uniform components minus the jacket, providing a professional yet comfortable appearance.

Shirt

The core of the Class B uniform is the Army green short-sleeve or long-sleeve shirt, depending on the season and command guidance. These shirts are typically made from a durable, wrinkle-resistant fabric that maintains a crisp look throughout the day. The shirt must be properly fitted and tucked into the trousers to maintain the uniform's neat appearance.

Trousers

Army green trousers accompany the shirt, crafted from a similar fabric to ensure uniformity. These trousers should be pressed with a sharp crease and worn at the natural waistline, secured with a black belt featuring a gold-colored buckle. Proper fit is crucial to avoid sagging or excessive tightness, which detracts from the professional image.

Footwear

Black leather dress shoes or low-quarter shoes are standard for the Class B setup. These shoes must be polished to a high shine and worn with black socks that extend above the ankle to maintain uniformity and professionalism in appearance.

Optional Outerwear

While the Class B uniform typically excludes the service coat, certain commands may authorize the wear of a lightweight cardigan or pullover sweater in black or green during colder weather. These items must conform to Army regulations and complement the overall uniform appearance.

Proper Wear and Appearance Standards

Adhering to wear and appearance standards is critical for male enlisted soldiers to demonstrate discipline and respect for military customs. The Class B uniform setup requires attention to detail in how each piece is worn and maintained.

Shirt and Trousers Fit

Uniform components must be properly sized and tailored to each soldier's body to ensure a sharp silhouette. Shirts should be fully buttoned except for the top button, which remains unfastened when a necktie is not worn. Trousers must be hemmed to the correct length, touching the tops of the shoes without bunching.

Belts and Buckles

The black leather belt is a mandatory component, featuring a gold-colored buckle bearing the Army insignia. The belt should fit snugly without excess length protruding past the buckle. Proper belt placement maintains the trousers at the waist and contributes to the overall uniformity.

Shirt Tucking and Appearance

The shirt must be neatly tucked into the trousers at all times. Soldiers are encouraged to use shirt stays or similar devices to maintain a smooth, untucked appearance throughout the day. Wrinkle-free presentation is essential during inspections and formal occasions.

Accessories and Insignia Placement

Proper placement of accessories and insignia on the male enlisted Army Class B uniform is vital for identification, rank display, and unit pride. These details must comply with Army Regulation 670-1 standards.

Rank Insignia

Rank insignia for enlisted soldiers are typically worn on the collar or shoulder epaulets depending on the uniform design. For Class B, the rank is often displayed on the collar using metal pins or embroidered patches. Placement must be symmetrical and secure, reflecting the soldier's current rank.

Army Nameplate

The black nameplate with gold lettering is centered horizontally on the right side of the shirt's outermost layer, positioned between the top of the pocket and the top seam of the shirt. The nameplate must be clean, polished, and free of damage.

Unit Patches and Badges

Unit patches are worn on the left shoulder or sleeve, reflecting the soldier's assigned unit. Additional badges such as skill tabs, tab badges, or identification tags may be worn in accordance with regulations. All insignia should be properly affixed and maintained.

Necktie and Tie Tab

When required, a black necktie is worn with the Class B uniform. The tie must be tied neatly with a standard knot and secured with a tie tab to prevent movement. Proper necktie wear is often reserved for formal events or specific duty assignments.

Grooming and Personal Appearance

Grooming standards play a critical role in complementing the male enlisted Army Class B uniform setup. Soldiers must adhere to strict guidelines that ensure a professional and disciplined appearance in line with Army values.

Haircut Standards

Hair must be neatly cut and conform to Army grooming regulations. The style should be conservative, allowing the uniform to fit properly without interference. Sideburns, mustaches, and beards are regulated, with most male soldiers required to be clean-shaven or maintain neatly trimmed facial hair.

Personal Hygiene

Maintaining high standards of personal hygiene is essential. Daily grooming, including bathing, shaving, and use of deodorant, supports the overall professional image expected of enlisted soldiers. Nails should be clean and trimmed to a functional length.

Jewelry and Cosmetics

Jewelry is limited to conservative items that do not interfere with uniform wear or military duties. This typically includes a wristwatch and wedding band. Cosmetics, if worn, must be natural in appearance and complement the uniform without drawing undue attention.

Maintenance and Care of the Class B Uniform

Proper maintenance and care of the Class B uniform are necessary to ensure longevity and a consistently sharp appearance. Soldiers are responsible for inspecting and caring for their uniforms regularly.

Cleaning and Pressing

Uniform garments should be cleaned according to fabric care instructions, typically via dry cleaning or machine washing on gentle cycles. Pressing is essential to maintain crisp creases in trousers and a wrinkle-free shirt. Regular inspection for stains, tears, and worn areas ensures timely repairs or replacements.

Storage

When not in use, the uniform should be stored in a clean, dry environment. Hanging garments on appropriate hangers prevents wrinkles and damage. Shoes must be polished and stored in protective bags or boxes to maintain their condition.

Insignia and Accessory Care

Metal insignia and nameplates require polishing to prevent tarnish. Velcro-backed patches should be inspected for secure attachment and cleanliness. Proper care of accessories ensures they remain presentable and functional at all times.

Regular Inspections

Performing routine inspections of the Class B uniform helps maintain compliance with Army standards. Command inspections often assess cleanliness, proper wear, and accessory placement. Soldiers must be proactive in correcting any deficiencies promptly.
