2. Event Type

The type of event will guide your choice of music. For formal events, opt for classical or soft jazz pieces, while casual gatherings may allow for more lively and contemporary selections.

3. Duration

Consider the length of time you need music. Some events may require a continuous performance, while others may only need a few select pieces. Discuss with your pianist to determine the best approach.

4. Venue

The venue can impact the acoustics and overall experience. A grand piano in a large hall will sound different than a digital piano in a small room. Choose music that complements the setting.
