Origins and Authorship of the Protocols of the Elders of Zion Book

The protocols of the elders of zion book first appeared in Russia around 1903. It was initially published as a pamphlet and later as a full-length book. The text claims to be the minutes of secret meetings held by Jewish leaders plotting world domination. However, extensive research has shown that the protocols are a fabricated document, likely created by elements within the Russian secret police to incite antisemitism and political unrest.

Historical Context of Creation

The emergence of the protocols coincided with a period of intense social and political turmoil in the Russian Empire. Antisemitism was widespread, exacerbated by economic hardships and revolutionary movements. The book was used as a tool to scapegoat Jewish communities and justify persecution. The political climate of the time made fertile ground for such a forgery to gain traction among nationalist and conservative groups.

Possible Authors and Sources

Although the precise authorship remains uncertain, many scholars attribute the fabrication to agents of the Okhrana, the Tsarist secret police. The protocols draw heavily from earlier political satire and conspiracy literature, particularly a 19th-century French political satire called Dialogue in Hell Between Machiavelli and Montesquieu. This indicates that the text was plagiarized and reworked to serve antisemitic purposes.

Content and Themes of the Protocols
