Developmental Milestones in 2nd Grade Reading

By the end of 2nd grade, students typically achieve several key reading milestones. These include reading grade-appropriate texts with fluency, recognizing and understanding new vocabulary, and answering questions about the text's content. Students also begin to use context clues to determine word meanings and identify main ideas and details within passages. The teacher provides prompts, asks questions, and models decoding and comprehension techniques. Guided reading fosters a supportive learning environment where students can develop confidence and receive immediate feedback.

Repeated Reading
